Highlight: The NSS Unit of our college has participate in Inculcating reading habits among students is essential for their academic and personal development. Encouraging a love for reading helps improve language skills, expands vocabulary, and enhances critical thinking. It fosters a deeper understanding of subjects, improves focus, and promotes lifelong learning. Teachers and parents play a key role by creating a reading-friendly environment, providing diverse reading materials, and setting a good example. Additionally, incorporating reading into daily routines, such as assigning books or setting aside time for independent reading, can motivate students to make reading a regular part of their lives. To further inculcate reading habits, schools and teachers can integrate reading into the daily routine. Assigning reading as part of homework or including it in classroom discussions allows students to see the value in reading beyond leisure. Inculcating reading habits is an essential part of student development, as it cultivates lifelong learning and broadens their intellectual horizons.
