Report

The Department of Mass Media and Communication Skills of Bunts Sangha's S.M Shetty College of Science Commerce and Management conducted a 'Filmmaking Workshop' from September 13 to September 24, 2021. Prof. Mangesh Karandikar, Director of the MET Institute, served as the workshop's mentor. The thirty hours lectures were held at the Zoom Meeting with two hours of class daily.

There were 20 students in the workshop. The main goal of the workshop was for students to learn about the basics of film making at home with the help of a mobile phone. The topics for the workshop were focused on various camera angles, lighting, phone video editing and audio editing.

During the workshop many advertisements, movies and videos were shared to help students with extensive study about the aspects of filmmaking like camera angles, lighting, and shots. A series of activities were done like story writing, script writing, storyboarding and video editing. The mobile video editing application used for the workshop was KineMaster. KineMaster is an accessible application that provides cuts and zooms, transitions, music, adding text in the videos, removing greenscreen from videos and adding a different background.

A detailed study of a script provided by Prof. Mangesh Karandikar called "The Godfather" and a report on the script was also done as one of the activities. Audio editing like removing of noise, volumes and waves of sounds were taught on an application called Audacity.

By the end of ten days, students had learned to film videos and edit films just by using their phones and with simple and free applications. The last task given was to create a short film using all the techniques taught. It was a beneficial workshop which will help students for their future endeavours.
